

Yola's café is named for Lance's grandmother, who passed away in the spring of 2008 after battling cancer. She was known as an excellent cook who worked at Peddler's Village, an Amish bakery and restaurant in Elkhart, Indiana. Yola always used food and a gift for hospitality to gather together family and friends. Her family would gather around her on the weekends and she would cater to them, serving them malts, roast beef dinners, baked pies and their favorite dishes. She was called a variety of names by her friends and family members - to her grand children she was grandma Yola, to her great grandchildren she was known as Grandma Yo-Yo, and to her sons, daughters, and other special friends she was simply known as Yo. We don't mind if you call her Yo as you become a part of the café family.

She always wanted her own café but was never able to realize that dream. Our desire is for Yola's to be a gathering place, much as Grandma Yola's house was on the weekends for her family. A place where we can serve you and cater to your needs as we learned to do from Yo.

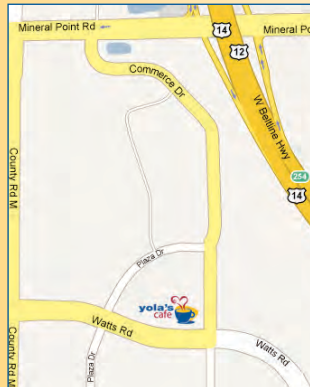

Welcome and make yourself at home. Let us know if there is any way we can help to serve you.
